

BUILDING PLANNING:

Building planning refers to the process of designing and organizing the construction of a building or structure. It involves determining the layout, dimensions, and functional requirements of the building, as well as considering various factors such as building codes, regulations, environmental considerations, and user needs.